DESERRET EVENING NEWS M'MILLAN BILL PASSES THE HOUSE

After a Lengthy and Spirited Discussion it Went to the Senate by an Overwhelming Majority.

By the overwhelming majority of 37 votes to 6, the McMillan bill passed the lower house of the Legislature yesterday afternoon, and will probably have almost as generous a margin in the Senate this afternoon. Here is the bill as it reads after sometrifling changes which were made in its phraseology:

"Hereafter it shall be unlawful for any board of health, board of education, or any other public board, acting in this State under police regulations or otherwise, to compel by resolution, order or proceedings of any kind the vaccination of any child, or person of any age; or making vaccination a condition precedent to the attendance of any public or private school in the State of Utah, either as pupil or teacher."

When in the regular course the Mc-Millan bill was reached under the head of unfinished business there was a hush in the House. Members leaned back in their chairs to await the coming storm and many among the crowd which thickly lined the visitors' gallery tiptoed or craned their necks the better to keep watch on the proceedings and miss nothing that was going on.

THE OPENING GUN.

The first to claim the privilege of the floor was Mr. Van Horne, of Salt Lake: "It is often argued," said he, "that compulsory vaccination deprives the citizen of part of his liberty. Nationally this may be right, but in civilized communities individuals must submerge their individual rights in the common weal. I am of an age to judge for myself whether or not I should be vaccinated, but no parent has the right to expose the health of his child to disease. I believe that however loving the parental heart there is a feeling that the public health is a matter which touches the heart of every citizen. The that the public health is a matter which touches the heart of every citizen. The best judicial opinion of the medical fraternity of the world is that every person should be safeguarded against this loathsome disease. The question before us is the vaccination of school children. I, for one, am conscientiously and faithfully against the negative the persons of and faithfully against the passage of this bill."

"Do you believe in compulsory vaccination," asked Mr. McMillan.
"Yes; I do," answered Van Horne. "I believe in every person, young or old, being vaccinated, unless there is physical reason why he should not."

HEWLETT FAVORED IT.

Mr. Hewlett declared himself in favor of the bill. He cited the case of a young woman in his ward who had suffered badly from smallpox, yet said she would rather have it a thousand times than be

UTAH COUNTY AGITATION

Mr. Homer of Utah county said that t seemed to him that this was a ques-ion which was agitating the whole of Utah county. When I went down to Provo on the "When I went down to Provo on the end of last week," said he, "it seemed to me that every one wanted me to take an oath to vote for the bill. This is not a question of the merits of vaccination, but one of compulsory vaccination. I believe vaccination is good, and my family has been vaccinated, but as it is the demand of my constituents I will vote for the bill."

LEHI'S EXPERIENCE.

Mr. Evans of Utah county said: "I was mayor of Lehl and chairman of the board of health when smallpox was at its worst in our city. Nineteen quaranits worst in our city. Nineteen quarantine flags were up at one time, and the people advocated closing the schools, but under medical advice the schools were kept open. At this time we received an order from the State board of health to close the schools to all unvaccinated children. People say that the statute was never intended to be construed this way. Why should we not also close the Sunday schools, dances, meetings, and so forth. I shall certainly vote for the passage of the McMillan bill."

STRUCK BOTH ALIKE.

Mr. Bench of Sanpete said that in Faiview most of the cases had been among adults. He read a letter from the mayor of that city, saying that small pox had stricken the vaccinated and unvaccinated alike, that the schools had been continually running, but they had not been able to trace one single case to the school children.

to the school children.
"Why should we close the schools and not other gatherings? Do children spread the disease worse than grown people?" He finished by stating that he "was not opposed to vaccination, but the people in our locality have suffered as much from it as smallpox."

ONLY ONE SIDE.

Mr. Langton of Cache said there was only one phase of the question that could be considered, and that had been placed before the House by Mr. Evans. "I must do the bidding of my constitunts," he concluded. Mr. Maughan of Cache said:

"We as a body will make no mistake hen we vote for the passage of the McMillan bill."

SHARP IN OPPOSITION. Mr. Sharp of Carbon said that 90 per cent of his constituents were against the passage of the bill. He believed that adults could guard against contagion, where children could not.

WORSE THAN SMALLPOX.

Mr. Harmon of Emery said: "I doubt whether or not vaccination is a good thing. In our county it has proved worse than smallpox. No man or body of men have the right to say that I shall make my strong and healthy children sick. Three of them had to take to bed as a result of vaccination. dren sick. Three of them had to take to bed as a result of vaccination, and I know personally of other three cases where it is doubtful if the people will ever recover. The concensus of the opinion of the world is against vaccination, and I resent the idea that the people of this State are governed by fanaticism." A round of applause greeted this outburst, which was quickly hushed by the speaker's gavel.

WHY SCHOOLS ALONE.

Mr. Kelly of Millard remarked that a great deal had been said on the subject and that the bill would pass by an overwhelming majority. Being a young man he considered that he had no right in his limited experience to judge as to the officacy of vaccination. He believed that the preponderance of evidence was in favor of the physicians, and that al-though he had not been vaccinated himself, vaccination was the proper thing to stamp out smallpox. But if we closed the schools there were many other public meeting places which were just as bad for spreading conta-

BLAMES THE DOCTORS.

Mr. Anderson of Weber said that he was in receipt of many letters and petitions against compulsory vaccination We are not here to express our own views so much as those of the people we represent. There has been some bullheadedness on the part of the physicians, who, I think, have gone about matters in a wrong way. There are many things provided for in the statement of the sith in the

This vaccination without sanitary regulations and hygienic efforts reminds me of putting scent on dirty clothes. The scent is all right but it would be etter on clean clothes. If we pass this bill, more who have been fighting against compulsory vaccination will b vaccinated than would have been other. wise. The freedom of an American citizen is such that he will not do a thing unless of his own free choice.

VACCINATION CONVERT.

Mr. Wells of Salt Lake said he was among those who had been converted to the efficacy of vaccination against smallpox, but as we are living under a government by consent it was necessary for us to surrender some of our personal rights. He was opposed to the usurpation of power which had been perpetuated on the people of Utah, Had it not been that previous Legislatures had refused to pass laws compelling vaccination, it might have been taken for granted that the State board of health had not overstepped its rights.

PUBLIC RIGHTS. Mr. Van Wagenen of Wasatch said that it was not a question of the hon-esty of the medical men but a matter of infringing on public rights.

DENOUNCED THE BILL. Mr. Stuart of Sale Lake said: "As a country member of Salt Lake county I would like to ask Mr. McGregor of Iron county why it is that he presents a petition from people living in West Jordan, and if he is acquainted with Bergen, one of the signers. Mr. Mc-Gregor said he knew none of the petiioners, but had presented the position because it had been given him for that purpose. Mr. Stuart said that out of the McMillan bill as class legislation.

Mr. McGregor said he believed that vaccination made people immune to smallpox, but did not believe in mak-

QUARANTINE THE REMEDY. Mr. Maughan of Cache said in answer o Stuart's statement about vaccination in Sandy that it was quarantine not vaccination that had stamped out the disease in his county.

CALLS IT RIDICULOUS.

Mr. Smith asked him whether he considered the opening of the schools to unvaccinated children a quarantine regulation. Mr. Maughan replied that 'All right, I can't talk to you," said Smith, He continued: "I was in hopes that I could keep out of this discussion, but it seems to me that the statement by two members on the floor opening the schools is a quarantine measure is so ridiculous that I feel bound to ex-press myself on the subject. To open the schools to unvaccinated children is not a quarantine regulation and never can be. It hastens the spread of disease. Besides you people who are advocating this bill are only cutting off your own noses. It is not an anti-compulsory vaccination bill. Let smallpox become epidemic and both vaccinated and unvaccinated children will have to stay away from the schools. Theaters, courts and all places of public gatherings will be closed. It is true that if we can seclude every man in his own ouse we may break up the disease, but to allow them to go at large and spread it is criminal. The gentleman from Emery's talk about rather having smallpox than being vaccinated is ridiculous. He asked Mr. Harmon if he had ever seen a case of confluent smallpox. Harmon replied that he had seen cases of what physicians called

MAUGHAN'S BOLD QUESTION.

Mr. Maughan broke in with the question, "Have we got any smallpox in Utah?" Mr. Smith said he was not ready to pass on that question. He then stated that the British government had thrown 2,000 troops who were vacci-nated into contact witht natives in South Africa, and that while the na-tives had suffered from the disease not tives had suffered from the discase had a single case had been known among the British troops. He also brought up the Franco-Prussian war argument in favor of the vaccinated German troops. "I repeat," he continued, "that if the object of this bill is to keep the schools open you will find that you will only succeed in closing them.'

DIFFERENCE IN DANGER.

"Do you think that there is more danger of contagion in the public schools than in the Sunday schools?" asked Mr. Evans. "Just five times as much," answered Smith, "because there are five days a week of public

PERSONAL RIGHTS.

N. L. Morris of Salt Lake asked why vaccinated children should not carry the germs in their clothes as well as those unvaccinated. Smith replied that if they were all vaccinated it could make no difference any way as they would not contract the disease. Morris related statistics to show that 14 per cent of vaccinated people had taken smallpox. He spoke of the reported sufferings from vaccination, and argued that if we did not know as physicians and some others about vac-cination still we did know what were our personal rights, and we would not have those rights imposed upon. It was unfair to talk of closing our schools when we permitted our theaters and pall rooms to remain open.

When Morris sat down Smith pro posed an amendment to the bill that in case of an epidemic of smallpox it should be in the power of boards of health to enforce such rules as might be necessary to preserve the public health. This and an amendment of fered later by Axton were both voted down.

IN MILD FORM ONLY. Mr. Gardner of Utah county was the next speaker. He said that the disease had been in so mild a form that people had not been seriously worked up over t. He thought that the vaccination was a more serious matter than the disease and the medical profession had failed to convince him that it was a pre-ventive of the disease. "In my town," said he, "out of 3,290 people, 128 un-vaccinated and 27 vaccinated persons took the disease. I have been mayor of the city and chairman of the board of health and therefore in a position to lieve that the medical profession has been a little unwise in trying to force these measures.

AS TO INSPECTION.

Mr. McFarland, of Weber, started in by asking the last speaker if he knew of any school child who had carried in-fection. Mr. Bishop replied in the neg-ative and Mr. McFarland replied that the gentleman from Utah had ex-pressed his views. He mentioned the case of a young woman, a neighbor of his, who was vaccinated last summer and had not yet recovered from the effects of it. He also spoke of several children who had become seriously ill through vaccination.

PEOPLE WANTED IT.

Mr. Johnson, of Utah county, said he would vote for the bill because people were in favor of it. In Spring-ville, his home, five out of six wanted the bill passed, and they were reasonable people too. When they had thirty cases in the town last year schools meeting places, dance halls were closed and no objection had been made.

AXTON'S AMENDMENT. Mr. Axton, of Salt Lake, then asked clerk to read his amendment to the It provided that in the event of mic the State board of health should have power to so arrangeschools in cities of the first and second class as to separate vaccinated from unvaccinated children. He said most of the members were in favor of the bill because they had received petitions in favor of it. He recalled the petition to Congress in the B. H. Roberts case. and asked how many present were in favor of the action Congress had taken. MR. WILLIAMS REPLIES.

chairman of the committee on public health, said he believed that in this county 75 per cent of the school chil-dren had already been vaccinated. The passage of the bill, he said, would not

MR. M'MILLAN CLOSES. Mr. McMillan, the author of the bill, had the privilege of closing the debate. After alluding to the action of a certain journal of Salt Lake in alluding to the bill as class legislation he said that it was his belief that all classes were in favor of the passage of the bill as a measure of relief. There was contromeasure of relief. There was controversy among the physicians. At their recent joint meeting with the committees from the Legislature Dr. Beatty had dec., ed that the disease that Woodbury had been suffering from was not due to vaccination. Dr. Richards had said that it might be. He could not approximately applied to the could not be suffered to the could not be say positively. This showed a variance of opinion among the physicians, and the speaker said that he did not know whether he was in favor of vaccina-tion or not. But he was certainly not in favor of compulsion. Mr. McMillan read a long article by Dr. M. R. Leverson in "Physical Culture" in which that authority said that "vaccination was authority said that "vaccination was absolutely opposed to common sense, appealed to the superstitious, was a revolting process, etc." He also quoted Gladstone, Sir Wilfred Lamson, Dr. George W. Mallory, of New York, and a number of others, all strongly opposed to vaccination. The vote was then taken. It resulted:

EFFECTS OF VACCINATION. One Case Out of a Multitude - Facts Speak Louder Than Theories.

Mrs. Nellie Druce Pugsley, residing on Fourth North street, near Second West, had a boy taken sick with some kind of a slight eruption which Dr. Scott who was sent for, was uncertain whether to call smallpox or not. Anyway, he quarantined the house and requested the family to be vaccinated, which they consented to, all seemed to be doing well except the baby who went into convulsions and for some time its life was despaired of. In fact Dr. Scott seemed to consider it hopeless. Finding the doctor's medicine worse than useless, the mother bathed the leg which had been vaccinated, and which was drawn up and twisted, and anointed it with consecrated oil, and in course of time the child was relieved although still very sick. It is unnecessary to state that Mrs. Pugsley does not desire any more of Dr. Scott's vaccination, but would pre-fer the smallpox as the child that had the smallpox, so-called, was not at any time very sick, while the one that was vaccinated come very near dying.

There are many cases in which vaccination has proven far worse than the disease it is supposed to prevent. In this case it was only a mother's love and constant attention combined with her faith and prayers that saved this child. The doctor, after doing the mischief was simply helpless, WM. J. SILVER.
